

1746. June 4.A. against B.

No. 4.

HORNING executed in October or November 1744, which might have been denounced and registrated any time within a year, but by reason of the Rebellion was not denounced till lately; the Lords were of opinion, that by the late act of Parliament for adjourning the Session, it was lawfully denounced, and therefore ordered it to be registrated, and ordered it to be marked in the books of sederunt that this was their opinion: On report by the Lord Ordinary on the bills.
