

Freedom of Information Act 2000 (FOIA)

Decision notice

Date: 27 March 2019

Public Authority: British Broadcasting Corporation
Address: Room BC2 A4
Broadcast Centre White City
Wood Lane
London
W12 7TP

Decision (including any steps ordered)

1. The complainant has requested information relating to the voting process for Eurovision: You Decide 2019. The BBC said that the requested information was covered by the derogation and excluded from FOIA.
2. The Commissioner's decision is that this information is held by the BBC for the purposes of 'journalism, art or literature' and does not fall within the scope of FOIA. She therefore upholds the BBC's position and requires no remedial steps to be taken in this case.

Request and response

3. On 11 March 2019 the complainant sent the following information request to the BBC:

"I have questions about the regulation and the legitimacy of the voting process which was used on the show Eurovision: You Decide 2019. Where the phone votes were legitimate, the online votes could easily be fraudulent. It was extremely easy to set up fake accounts in seconds to be able to cast votes in this process.

I would like to know:

1. What steps were taken to regulate and stop fraudulent votes?
2. What the split or numbers of online to phone votes were?

3. How many online votes were made with new accounts (created in the week leading up to the show) or inactive accounts (accounts that have not used other features on the BBC website)?"
4. On 12 March 2019 the BBC responded to your request. The BBC explained that it did not believe that the information was caught by FOIA because it was held for the purposes of art, journalism or literature.

Scope of the case

5. The complainant contacted the Commissioner on 13 March 2019 to complain about the way his request for information had been handled.
6. The Commissioner considers the scope of the case is to determine whether the information requested is excluded from FOIA because it would be held for the purposes of 'journalism, art or literature'.

Reasons for decision

7. Schedule One, Part VI of FOIA provides that the BBC is a public authority for the purposes of FOIA but only has to deal with requests for information in some circumstances. The entry relating to the BBC states:

"The British Broadcasting Corporation, in respect of information held for purposes other than those of journalism, art or literature."

8. This means that the BBC has no obligation to comply with part I to V of the Act where information is held for 'purposes of journalism, art or literature'. The Commissioner calls this 'the derogation'.
9. The scope of the derogation was considered by the Court of Appeal in the case Sugar v British Broadcasting Corporation and another [2010] EWCA Civ 715, and later, on appeal, by the Supreme Court (Sugar (Deceased) v British Broadcasting Corporation [2012] UKSC 4). The leading judgment in the Court of Appeal case was made by Lord Neuberger of Abbotsbury MR who stated that:

" once it is established that the information sought is held by the BBC for the purposes of journalism, it is effectively exempt from production under FOIA, even if the information is also held by the BBC for other purposes.” (paragraph 44), and that “...provided there is a genuine journalistic purpose for which the information is held, it should not be subject to FOIA.” (paragraph 46)

10. The Supreme Court endorsed this approach and concluded that if the information is held for the purpose of journalism, art or literature, it is caught by the derogation even if that is not the predominant purpose for holding the information in question.
11. In order to establish whether the information is held for a derogated purpose, the Supreme Court indicated that there should be a sufficiently direct link between at least one of the purposes for which the BBC holds the information (ignoring any negligible purposes) and the fulfilment of one of the derogated purposes. This is the test that the Commissioner will apply.
12. If a sufficiently direct link is established between the purposes for which the BBC holds the information and any of the three derogated purposes – i.e. journalism, art or literature - it is not subject to FOIA.
13. The Supreme Court said that the Information Tribunal’s definition of journalism (in Sugar v Information Commissioner (EA/2005/0032, 29 August 2006)) as comprising three elements, continues to be Authoritative.
 - “1. The first is the collecting or gathering, writing and verifying of materials for publication.
 2. The second is editorial. This involves the exercise of judgement on issues such as:
 - * the selection, prioritisation and timing of matters for broadcast or publication,
 - * the analysis of, and review of individual programmes,
 - * the provision of context and background to such programmes.
 3. The third element is the maintenance and enhancement of the standards and quality of journalism (particularly with respect to accuracy, balance and completeness). This may involve the training and development of individual journalists, the mentoring of less experienced journalists by more experienced colleagues, professional supervision and guidance, and reviews of the standards and quality of particular areas of programme making.”
14. However, the Supreme Court said this definition should be extended to include the act of broadcasting or publishing the relevant material. This extended definition should be adopted when applying the ‘direct link test’.

15. The Supreme Court also explained that "journalism" primarily means the BBC's "output on news and current affairs", including sport, and that "journalism, art or literature" covers the whole of the BBC's output to the public (Lord Walker at paragraph 70). Therefore, in order for the information to be derogated and so fall outside FOIA, there should be a sufficiently direct link between the purpose(s) for which the information is held and the production of the BBC's output and/or the BBC's journalistic or creative activities involved in producing such output.
16. The information requested relates to the maintenance and enhancement of standards, in this case the fairness of participation in the voting process for a particular programme. This is directly linked to the BBC's output and the results broadcast by the BBC. This information is therefore held 'to any significant degree' for the purpose of journalism, art or literature. The information requested falls squarely within this definition.
17. The Commissioner has therefore found that this information is held for the purposes of journalism, art or literature and that the BBC was not obliged to comply with Parts I to V of FOIA.
