TRADE MARKS ACT 1994

IN THE MATTER OF TRADE MARK APPLICATION UK 3315892

BY

HANGRY LTD

TO REGISTER THE FOLLOWING TRADE MARK

IN CLASSES 25, 35, 42 AND 43

AND

OPPOSITION THERETO (NO.600000919)

BY

HANGRY HOUSE LTD

Background and Pleadings

1. HANGRY LTD (the Applicant) applied to register the trade mark shown on the cover page of this decision on the 6 June 2018 for goods and services in classes 25, 35, 42 and 43, the full specification details for which are contained in the annex to this decision. It was accepted and published on the 13 July 2018.

2. HANGRY HOUSE LTD (the Opponent) opposes the application by way of the fast track opposition procedure, under section 5(2)(a) and section 5(2)(b) of the Trade Marks Act 1994 (the Act). This is on the basis of its earlier UK and International trademarks shown below namely “Hangry” registration number UK3095841 filed on the 23 February 2015 and registered on the 22 May 2015 and “hangry” WE1328537 designating the UK and registered on the 25 May 2016 and given protection on the 21 June 2017. The two marks are registered in respect of goods relied upon in class 30 as set out below:

Mark 1 UK3095841 Hangry	Class 30: Cereal based snack food; Cereal snacks; Cereal bars; Cereal based food bars; Cereal based foodstuffs for human consumption; Cereal based prepared snack foods; Cereal based snack foods; Cereal breakfast foods; Cereal cakes for human consumption; Cereal flour; Cereal powders; Cereal preparations coated with sugar and honey; Cereal preparations consisting of bran; Cereal preparations consisting of oatbran; Cereal preparations containing oatbran; Cereal products in bar form; Cereal seeds, processed; Cereal snack foods

	flavoured with cheese; Food mixtures consisting of cereal flakes and dried fruits; Snack food products consisting of cereal products; Snack food products made from cereal flour; Snack food products made from cereal starch; Bread improvers being cereal based preparations; Chips [cereal products]; Cereal preparations.
Mark 2 WE1328537 hangry	Class 30: Flapjacks; nut confectionery; sesame seeds; sesame snacks; snack bars consisting of chocolate; snack bars containing a mixture of grains, nuts and dried fruit [confectionery]; snack bars containing dried fruits [confectionery]; snack bars containing grains [confectionery]; snack bars containing nuts [confectionery]; snack food (cereal-based -); snack food (rice-based -); snack foods consisting principally of extruded cereals; snack foods consisting principally of grain; cereal based snack food; cereal snacks; cereal bars; cereal based food bars; cereal based foodstuffs for human consumption; cereal based prepared snack foods; cereal based snack foods; cereal breakfast foods; cereal cakes for human consumption; cereal flour; cereal powders; cereal preparations coated with sugar and honey; cereal preparations consisting of bran; cereal

3. The Opponent relies on all the goods in class 30 for which the marks are registered. The Opponent claims that there is a likelihood of confusion because under section 5(2)(a) and 5(2)(b) the trade marks are identical or similar and are to be registered for goods or services identical with or similar to those for which the earlier marks are protected.

4. The Opponent submits in its statement of grounds that:

“The use of ‘hangry’ on clothing will cause confusion as we have promotional clothing already in market to advertise are brand.” [sic]

“The use of hangry in class 35, 42 and 43 will cause further confusion as our products are available in restaurants and on demand applications.”

5. The Applicant filed a defence and counterstatement denying the claims made and submitting that:

“we operate a restaurant business which is marketed and known as “Hangry””

“The Opponent has a trademark registered that cover the supply of cereal bars, class 30 and all of their marketing is clearly defined and aimed at this specific market with the strap lines “Hangry Snack Out of it” and “Hangry food co” on their cereal bar packaging”

“Hangry Ltd is not involved in the production of or the supply of cereal bars. The suggestion that they supply coffee shops/restaurant with cereal bars and that granting our trademark would cause confusion is clearly unsubstantiated.”

“Hangry house Ltd on the 30/9/15 chose to trademark within class 30 which was clearly an informed and specific decision relating to their business plan and business intentions which today their marketing confirms which is of course the supply and production of Cereal Bars!”

6. Neither party is represented. Neither party has filed any submissions other than those contained within the original TM7F and TM8 pleadings. Neither party has applied for leave to file evidence and the matter has therefore proceeded in accordance with the Fast Track procedure.

7. Within the papers I have sight of an email dated 19 September 2018 addressed to Louisa Wilkinson (the Opponent’s representative) putting forward proposals to compromise. Ordinarily I would not be privy to the contents of this email and even though the Opponent has not made any application to exclude this document its content plays no part in my decision.

Decision

8. Section 5(2)(a) of the Act requires the respective marks to be identical. The Act states:

“5(2) A trade mark shall not be registered if because—

(a) it is identical with an earlier trade mark and is to be registered for goods or services similar to those for which the earlier trade mark is protected, or

there exists a likelihood of confusion on the part of the public, which includes the likelihood of association with the earlier trade mark.”

there exists a likelihood of confusion on the part of the public, which includes the likelihood of association with the earlier trade mark”.

9. In S.A. Société LTJ Diffusion v. Sadas Vertbaudet SA, Case C-291/00, the Court of Justice of the European Union (CJEU) held that:

“54... a sign is identical with the trade mark where it reproduces, without any modification or addition, all the elements constituting the trade mark or where, viewed as a whole, it contains differences so insignificant that they may go unnoticed by an average consumer.”

10. The Applicant's mark consists of a device where the word HANGRY is presented within a pair of red lips, whereas the Opponent's trademarks comprise of the word only marks Hangry and hangry respectively. There are obvious visual differences between the marks, namely the Applicant's device as represented on the cover page versus the Opponent's word only marks “hangry”. The Applicant's mark is not identical to the Opponent's marks as the difference between them, by the use of the lips and the stylisation of the word HANGRY in combination, cannot be discounted or considered insignificant. Consequently, the opposition under section 5(2)(a) fails as the marks are not identical.

11. I will therefore go on to consider the opposition under section 5(2)(b), which states:

“5(2) A trade mark shall not be registered if because-

(b) it is similar to an earlier trade mark and is to be registered for goods or services identical with or similar to those for which the earlier trade mark is protected, there exists a likelihood of confusion on the part of the public, which includes the likelihood of association with the earlier trade mark”.

12. An earlier trade mark is defined in section 6 of the Act, which states:

“6. - (1) In this Act an “earlier trade mark” means –

(a) a registered trade mark, international trade mark (UK), Community trade mark or international trade mark (EC) which has a date of application for registration earlier than that of the trade mark in question, taking account (where appropriate) of the priorities claimed in respect of the trade marks,

(2) References in this Act to an earlier trade mark include a trade mark in respect of which an application for registration has been made and which, if registered, would be an earlier trade mark by virtue of subsection (1)(a) or (b), subject to its being so registered.”

13. In these proceedings, the Opponent is relying upon its UK and International trade mark registrations, shown above, which qualify as earlier marks under section 6 of the Act. As the earlier marks have been registered for less than five years at the date the application was published they are not subject to the proof of use provisions contained in section 6A of the Act. Consequently, the Opponent is entitled to rely upon all the Class 30 goods of its registrations, without having to establish genuine use.

14. The following principles are gleaned from the decisions of the EU courts in Sabel BV v Puma AG, Case C-251/95, Canon Kabushiki Kaisha v Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Inc, Case C-39/97, Lloyd Schuhfabrik Meyer & Co GmbH v Klijsen Handel B.V. Case C-342/97, Marca Mode CV v Adidas AG & Adidas Benelux BV, Case C-425/98, Matratzen Concord GmbH v OHIM, Case C-3/03, Medion AG v. Thomson Multimedia Sales Germany & Austria GmbH, Case C-120/04, Shaker di L. Laudato & C. Sas v OHIM, Case C-334/05P and Bimbo SA v OHIM, Case C-591/12P.

The principles:

(a) The likelihood of confusion must be appreciated globally, taking account of all relevant factors;

(b) the matter must be judged through the eyes of the average consumer of the goods or services in question, who is deemed to be reasonably well informed and reasonably circumspect and observant, but who rarely has the chance to make direct comparisons between marks and must instead rely upon the imperfect picture of them he has kept in his mind, and whose attention varies according to the category of goods or services in question;

(c) the average consumer normally perceives a mark as a whole and does not proceed to analyse its various details;

(d) the visual, aural and conceptual similarities of the marks must normally be assessed by reference to the overall impressions created by the marks bearing in mind their distinctive and dominant components, but it is only when all other components of a complex mark are negligible that it is permissible to make the comparison solely on the basis of the dominant elements;

- (e) nevertheless, the overall impression conveyed to the public by a composite trade mark may be dominated by one or more of its components;
- (f) however, it is also possible that in a particular case an element corresponding to an earlier trade mark may retain an independent distinctive role in a composite mark, without necessarily constituting a dominant element of that mark;
- (g) a lesser degree of similarity between the goods or services may be offset by a greater degree of similarity between the marks, and vice versa;
- (h) there is a greater likelihood of confusion where the earlier mark has a highly distinctive character, either per se or because of the use that has been made of it;
- (i) mere association, in the strict sense that the later mark brings to mind the earlier mark, is not sufficient;
- (j) the reputation of a mark does not give grounds for presuming a likelihood of confusion simply because of a likelihood of association in the strict sense;
- (k) if the association between the marks creates a risk that the public will wrongly believe that the respective goods or services come from the same or economically-linked undertakings, there is a likelihood of confusion.

Comparison of goods and services

15. When conducting a goods and services comparison, all relevant factors should be considered as per the judgment of the Court of Justice of the European Union (CJEU) in Canon Kabushiki Kaisha v Metro Goldwyn Mayer Inc Case C-39/97, where the court stated at paragraph 23 of its judgment that:

“In assessing the similarity of the goods or services concerned, as the French and United Kingdom Governments and the Commission have pointed out, all the relevant factors relating to those goods or services themselves should be taken into account. Those factors include, inter alia, their nature, their intended purpose and their method of use and whether they are in competition with each other or are complementary”.

16. I am also guided by the relevant factors for assessing similarity identified by Jacob J in Treat, [1996] R.P.C. 281 namely:

- (a) The respective uses of the respective goods or services;
- (b) The respective users of the respective goods or services;
- (c) The physical nature of the goods or acts of service;
- (d) The respective trade channels through which the goods or services reach the market;
- (e) In the case of self-serve consumer items, where in practice they are respectively found or likely to be, found in supermarkets and in particular whether they are, or are likely to be, found on the same or different shelves;
- (f) The extent to which the respective goods or services are competitive. This inquiry may take into account how those in trade classify goods, for instance whether market research companies, who of course act for industry, put the goods or services in the same or different sectors.

17. In addition, in YouView TV Ltd v Total Ltd, [2012] EWHC 3158 (Ch), Floyd J stated that:

“... Trade mark registrations should not be allowed such a liberal interpretation that their limits become fuzzy and imprecise: see the observations of the CJEU in Case C-307/10 The Chartered Institute of Patent Attorneys (Trademarks) (IP TRANSLATOR) [2012] ETMR 42 at [47]-[49]. Nevertheless, the principle should not be taken too far. Treat was decided the way it was because the ordinary and natural, or core, meaning of 'dessert sauce' did not include jam, or because the ordinary and natural description of jam was not 'a dessert sauce'. Each involved a straining of the relevant language, which is incorrect. Where words or phrases in their ordinary and natural meaning are apt to cover the category of goods in question, there is equally no justification for straining the language unnaturally so as to produce a narrow meaning which does not cover the goods in question."

18. In Gérard Meric v Office for Harmonisation in the Internal Market (OHIM), Case T- 133/05, the General Court (GC) stated that:

"29. In addition, the goods can be considered as identical when the goods designated by the earlier mark are included in a more general category, designated by trade mark application (Case T-388/00 Institut für Lernsysteme v OHIM- Educational Services (ELS) [2002] ECR II-4301, paragraph 53) or where the goods designated by the trade mark application are included in a more general category designated by the earlier mark".

19. In Oakley, Inc v OHIM, Case T-116/06, at paragraphs 46-57, the GC held that although retail services are different in nature, purpose and method of use to goods, retail services for particular goods may be complementary to those goods, and distributed through the same trade channels, and therefore similar to a degree.

20. In Tony Van Gulck v Wasabi Frog Ltd, Case BL O/391/14, Mr Geoffrey Hobbs Q.C. as the Appointed Person reviewed the law concerning retail services against goods. He said (at paragraph 9 of his judgment) that:

"9. The position with regard to the question of conflict between use of BOO! for handbags in Class 18 and shoes for women in Class 25 and use of MissBoo for the Listed Services is considerably more complex. There are four main reasons for that: (i) selling and offering to sell goods does not, in itself, amount to providing retail services in Class 35; (ii) an application for registration of a trade mark for retail services in Class 35 can validly describe the retail services for which protection is requested in general terms; (iii) for the purpose of determining whether such an application is objectionable under Section 5(2)(b), it is necessary to ascertain whether there is a likelihood of confusion with the opponent's earlier trade mark in all the circumstances in which the trade mark applied for might be used if it were to be registered; (iv) the criteria for determining whether, when and to what degree services are 'similar' to goods are not clear cut."

21. However, on the basis of the European courts' judgements in Sanco SA v OHIM (Case C-411/13P), and Assembled Investments (Proprietary) Ltd v. OHIM (Case T-105/05 at paragraphs [30] to [35] of the judgement), upheld on appeal in Waterford Wedgwood Plc v. Assembled Investments (Proprietary) Ltd (Case C-398/07P), Mr Hobbs concluded that:

i) Goods and services are not similar on the basis that they are complementary if the complementarity between them is insufficiently pronounced that, from the consumer's point of view, they are unlikely to be offered by one and the same undertaking;

ii) In making a comparison involving a mark registered for goods and a mark proposed to be registered for retail services (or vice versa), it is necessary to envisage the retail services normally associated with the opponent's goods and then to compare the opponent's goods with the retail services covered by the applicant's trade mark;

iii) It is not permissible to treat a mark registered for 'retail services for goods 'X' as though the mark was registered for goods X;

iv) The General Court's findings in Oakley did not mean that goods could only be regarded as similar to retail services where the retail services related to exactly the same goods as those for which the other party's trade mark was registered (or proposed to be registered).

22. It is not necessary for the goods covered by the application to be identical to the goods specified in the Opponent's retail services specification in order for there to be a complementary relationship between them, it is however necessary for there to be a sufficiently close relationship between the respective goods and services that the public might reasonably believe that they are complementary goods/services likely to be offered by the one and the same undertaking.

23. For the purposes of considering the issue of similarity of goods and services I have where possible grouped together the Applicant's terms. The full specifications in the application are set out in the annex, running to over 70 pages of text. As stated earlier in this decision, the opposition is directed at the entire list of goods and services. Neither party has made submissions regarding the comparison between the respective goods or services, however to establish a likelihood of confusion between the marks it is essential for there to be at the very least some identity or similarity between the goods or services. This was highlighted in eSure Insurance v Direct Line Insurance, [2008] ETMR 77 CA, where Lady Justice Arden stated that (my emphasis):

"49..... I do not find any threshold condition in the jurisprudence of the Court of Justice cited to us. Moreover I consider that no useful purpose is served by holding that there is some minimum threshold level of similarity that has to be shown. If there is no similarity at all, there is no likelihood of confusion to be considered. If there is some similarity, then the likelihood of confusion has to be considered but it is unnecessary to interpose a need to find a minimum level of similarity."

Class 25 – Clothing

24. The Opponent submits that it uses promotional clothing in order to advertise its brand and therefore this will cause confusion. However, for the purposes of this opposition I can only consider the Opponent's specification as registered; namely the specified goods in class 30 only. It does not have cover for clothing.

25. None of the Opponent's goods in class 30 can be similar to the contested clothing (class 25). They are foodstuff as opposed to clothing. They are completely dissimilar. The goods are manufactured from different materials by different industries and sold through different distribution channels and outlets. Even if there was a cross over in the trade channels, in so far as internet sales and conventional shopping channels are concerned, they are likely to be sold in different area of a shop or online departments. No consumer would determine that there would be any identity or similarity in the goods. The items belong in different markets and could not compete with one another. There is no complementarity between them where one could be used or was indispensable to the other so that consumers would think that the same or linked undertakings were responsible.

Class 42 - Restaurant Design Services

26. Similarly, none of the Opponent's goods can be considered identical or similar to the contested restaurant design services in class 42. Restaurant design services by their nature provide planning and architecture services for the physical structure/blueprint of a restaurant and its interiors. They share no similarity with any of the Opponent's goods in class 30.

Class 35 - Business, Advertising Management and Retail Services

27. Other than those listed in paragraph 28, the applied for Business, Advertising Management and Retail Services for which the Applicant seeks registration (as set out in the annex) are dissimilar to all the Opponent's goods in class 30. They do not share the same provider, they are directed towards different consumers and are neither complementary nor in competition. There is no corresponding relationship between the goods and the services. Their nature, purposes and methods of use are dissimilar.

28. For those services that I have emboldened in the annex namely "Mail order retail services related to foodstuff; Retail services connected with the sale of subscription boxes containing chocolates; Retail services connected with the sale of subscription boxes containing food; Retail services in relation to baked goods; Retail services in relation to bakery products; Retail services in relation to chocolate; Retail services in relation to cocoa; Retail services in relation to confectionery; Retail services in relation to desserts; Retail services in relation to foodstuffs; Retail services relating to food; Retail services via catalogues related to foodstuffs; Retail services via global computer networks related to foodstuffs; Wholesale services in relation to baked goods; Wholesale services in relation to chocolate; Wholesale services in relation to cocoa; Wholesale services in relation to confectionery; Wholesale services in relation to foodstuffs; Wholesale services relating to candy" I find that they share a low degree of similarity with the Opponent's goods.

29. Cereal bars and snack bars are typically portable consumable foodstuff directed towards end users and would be considered a healthier option to confectionery, chocolate, cocoa and candy. Those providers offering retail and wholesale services for cereal bars would also offer retail services for confectionery and chocolate as the items would be sold in similar outlets through the same trade channels. Whilst the goods would be in competition with each other, the goods and services are complementary, and the cereal bars/snack bars, confectionery and chocolate would be purchased in the same places where they are offered for sale. The purpose of retail services in relation to foodstuff is the bringing together and offering for sale a variety of products allowing consumers to conveniently satisfy different shopping needs at one stop. Therefore, the services I have emboldened in the annex in class 35 would share a low level of similarity with the Opponent's class 30 goods.

Class 43 - Restaurant, Food and Drink services

30. The remaining contested Restaurant, Food and Drink services in the Applicant's application in class 43 (as set out in the annex) are dissimilar to all the Opponent's goods in class 30.

31. The core purpose of the Opponent's goods are snack foods to be eaten on the go, similar to crisps and confectionary. Typically, these types of goods if sold in cafes, coffee shops and the like, are chosen from a pre-packaged selection on display and are often not manufactured on site. They will typically be found in shops and supermarkets or the types of food serving establishments which provide a more casual service. These types of establishments may have cereal bars and snack bars on display for sale alongside other products, however, in my view the sale of these items is akin to retail services and not the provision of food. The services do not coincide in nature with the contested goods, they do not share complementarity, purpose or method of use. They are therefore dissimilar.

32. For these reasons the opposition fails under section 5(2)(b) in relation to those services that remain unemboldened in class 35 in the annex and in relation to all the goods and services in classes 25, 42 and 43. I will only therefore go on to consider the likelihood of confusion in relation the contested services I have found to be similar as outlined in paragraph 28 above.

Average Consumer

33. The average consumer is deemed to be reasonable well informed and reasonably observant and circumspect. When considering the opposing trade marks, I must bear in mind that the level of attention is likely to vary according to the category of goods and services in question.¹

34. In Hearst Holdings Inc, Fleischer Studios Inc v A.V.E.L.A. Inc, Poeticgem Limited, The Partnership (Trading) Limited, U Wear Limited, J Fox Limited, [2014] EWHC 439 (Ch), Birss J described the average consumer in these terms:

“60. The trade mark questions have to be approached from the point of view of the presumed expectations of the average consumer who is reasonably well informed and reasonably circumspect. The parties were agreed that the relevant person is a legal construct and that the test is to be applied objectively by the court from the point of view of that constructed person. The words “average” denotes that the person is typical. The term “average” does not denote some form of numerical mean, mode or median.”

35. Neither party has made submissions regarding the average consumer or the purchasing process. I therefore consider that the average consumer of the Opponent’s goods is a member of the general public who is likely to choose the goods via visual means from a shop or supermarket through self-selection or purchase the goods over the counter in a cafe or coffee shop. In relation to the Applicant’s contested services it is also primarily a visual process where the consumer will select the services following the display of its name at the actual venue, via the internet or on advertising material. Aural considerations cannot be discounted either, following word of mouth recommendations. This purchasing process is therefore likely to be both visual and aural.

36. Consumers are increasingly more alert to the purchase of foodstuff, they take into account such things as calorific content as well as dietary/allergen considerations before purchase. I consider, therefore, that the purchasers of the Opponent's goods will pay an average degree of attention in their selection process as the goods in question are consumable purchases, inexpensive in nature. The level of care taken in the selection of the Applicant's services however will be higher as it will involve a discussion regarding the type of food and drink on offer, which eating establishment to frequent, the nature of the food, and the type of occasion - be it a celebratory or a casual eating experience. However, I do not consider that this selection process will be significantly more than average.

Comparison of the marks

37. It is clear from Sabel BV v. Puma AG (particularly paragraph 23) that the average consumer normally perceives a mark as a whole and does not proceed to analyse its various details. The same case also explains that the visual, aural and conceptual similarities of the marks must be assessed by reference to the overall impressions created by the marks, bearing in mind their distinctive and dominant components. The CJEU stated at paragraph 34 of its judgment in Case C-591/12P, Bimbo SA v OHIM, that:

“.....it is necessary to ascertain, in each individual case, the overall impression made on the target public by the sign for which registration is sought, by means of, inter alia, an analysis of the components of a sign and of their relative weight in the perception of the target public, and then, in the light of that overall impression and all factors relevant to the circumstances of the case, to assess the likelihood of confusion.”

38. It would be wrong, therefore, to artificially dissect the trade marks, although, it is necessary to consider the distinctive and dominant components of the marks and to give due weight to any other features which are not negligible and therefore contribute to the overall impressions created by the marks.

39. The respective trade marks are shown below:

Applicant's Mark	Opponent's Marks
	Mark 1. Hangry Mark 2. hangry

40. Both the Opponent's marks consist of the single word only mark "hangry" presented in conventional font. There are no other elements to contribute to the overall impression, and therefore the distinctive and dominant component of each mark is contained in the word itself.

41. The Applicant's mark consists of two components, a figurative and verbal element comprising of the word HANGRY presented inside a pair of red lips, displayed over a black background. The word HANGRY is presented in yellow block capitals with some stylisation in the size, font and design. Both the device and the words contribute equally to the overall impression of the mark, but the word HANGRY is the most striking part of the image and the one to which the eye is naturally drawn. The colours do not contribute significantly to the overall impression of the mark.

Visual comparison

42. The only point of visual similarity between the competing marks is the word HANGRY. The Opponent's two marks are word only marks which are in direct contrast to the Applicant's mark which is more complex, consisting of the word HANGRY presented in different sized font, inside a figurative element. The common element is the most dominant element in the application and the only component in the earlier marks. I consider that there is a medium degree of visual similarity between the two marks.

Aural comparison

43. The aural similarities lie in the word "HANGRY", which is identical in both marks, and is the only articulated element present in the application. Since they will be articulated in an identical way I consider the competing marks to be aurally identical.

Conceptual comparison

44. There is no evidence or submissions from either party regarding the average consumer's understanding of the marks. I am aware that 'hangry' is now a term in common parlance used to describe someone being so hungry that they become bad tempered (angry). However, I do not know how well-known this is, and there is no evidence from the parties to shed light on the matter. If the meaning is known, in both marks the word hangry will allude to eating and food, even more so in the Applicant's mark by the inclusion of the lips. The conceptual similarity between the marks will be high. If the meaning is not known, the conceptual similarity between the marks will be neutral.

Distinctive character of the earlier marks

45. In Lloyd Schuhfabrik Meyer & Co. GmbH v Klijsen Handel BV, Case C-342/97 the CJEU stated that:

“22. In determining the distinctive character of a mark and, accordingly, in assessing whether it is highly distinctive, the national court must make an overall assessment of the greater or lesser capacity of the mark to identify the goods or services for which it has been registered as coming from a particular undertaking, and thus to distinguish those goods or services from those of other undertakings (see, to that effect, judgment of 4 May 1999 in Joined Cases C-108/97 and C-109/97 Windsurfing Chiemsee v Huber and Attenberger [1999] ECR I-0000, paragraph 49).

23. In making that assessment, account should be taken, in particular, of the inherent characteristics of the mark, including the fact that it does or does not contain an element descriptive of the goods or services for which it has been registered; the market share held by the mark; how intensive, geographically widespread and long-standing use of the mark has been; the amount invested by the undertaking in promoting the mark; the proportion of the relevant section of the public which, because of the mark, identifies the goods or services as originating from a particular undertaking; and statements from chambers of commerce and industry or other trade and professional associations (see Windsurfing Chiemsee, paragraph 51).”

46. Registered trade marks possess varying degrees of inherent distinctive character, ranging from the very low, because they are suggestive or allusive of a characteristic of the goods or services, to those with high inherent distinctive character, such as invented words which have no allusive qualities. The degree of distinctiveness is an important factor as it directly relates to whether there is a likelihood of confusion; the more distinctive the earlier mark the greater the likelihood of confusion.

47. The earlier marks consist of one word “Hangry”. As discussed above, whilst the word is not directly descriptive of the Opponent’s goods it has an allusive association with eating something to keep hunger at bay. If the meaning is known, I consider that the Opponent’s marks possess a low to medium degree of inherent distinctiveness. If the meaning is not known, the marks possess a high degree of inherent distinctiveness as they are invented words.

Likelihood of Confusion

48. When considering whether there is a likelihood of confusion between the two marks I must consider whether there is direct confusion, where one mark is mistaken for the other or whether there is indirect confusion where the similarities between the marks lead the consumer to believe that the respective goods or services originate from the same or related source.

49. In L.A. Sugar Limited v By Back Beat Inc, Case BL O/375/10, Mr Iain Purvis Q.C., as the Appointed Person, explained that:

“16. Although direct confusion and indirect confusion both involve mistakes on the part of the consumer, it is important to remember that these mistakes are very different in nature. Direct confusion involves no process of reasoning – it is a simple matter of mistaking one mark for another. Indirect confusion, on the other hand, only arises where the consumer has actually recognised that the later mark is different from the earlier mark. It therefore requires a mental process of some kind on the part of the consumer when he or she sees the later mark, which may be conscious or subconscious but, analysed in formal terms, is something along the following lines: “The later mark is different from the earlier mark, but also has something in common with it. Taking account of the common element in the context of the later mark, I conclude that it is another brand of the owner of the earlier mark.”

50. In determining whether there is a likelihood of confusion there are a number of factors to bear in mind. The first is the interdependency principle i.e. a lesser degree of similarity between the respective trade marks may be offset by a greater degree of similarity between the respective goods or services and vice versa. As I mentioned above, it is necessary for me to keep in mind the distinctive character of the Opponent’s trade mark, the average consumer for the goods and the nature of the purchasing process. In doing so, I must consider that the average consumer rarely has the opportunity to make direct comparisons between trade marks and must instead rely upon the imperfect picture of them that he has retained in his mind.

51. I have identified the average consumer to be a member of the general public who would primarily select the goods and services via visual means but with aural considerations not being discounted. I have found at least an average level of attention being paid in the purchasing process. Owing to the impact of the device in the Applicant’s mark, I do not believe that the applied for mark would be directly confused with the word only earlier marks.

52. I will now go on to consider whether there is indirect confusion. Of those goods and services which I have determined are similar, even to a low degree, the similarities between the marks, would, in my view, lead the average consumer to believe that the goods and services came from the same undertaking and linked trade source which would lead to a likelihood of indirect confusion in the minds of the average consumer. This is the case whether or not the average consumer knows that hangry has a meaning.

Costs

55. As the Applicant has had the greater share of success ordinarily it would be entitled to an award of costs. The Applicant being unrepresented was invited by the tribunal to indicate whether it intended to make a request for an award of costs, including providing accurate estimates of the number of hours spent on a range of given activities relating to the prosecution of the proceedings. It was made clear by letter dated the 20 November 2018 that if the pro-forma was not completed, no costs arising from the action would be awarded. The Applicant did not respond to that invitation and therefore I make no award for costs in this case.
